

Cultural values in the cultural sphere: a European perspective

1st UNCHARTED Workshop

Faculty of Arts and Humanities of University of Porto

16-17 September 2021

UNCHARTED is a multidisciplinary project, under the coordination of the University of Barcelona, to address a wide range of aspects and perspectives of the plural values of culture in different contexts and sectors.

Through an extended dialogue between the whole consortium, some members of the project advisory board and other invited stakeholders, this workshop will develop an examination of the factors shaping the values of culture in Europe and will carry out a systematic comparison between perspectives on different areas of cultural practices where these values emerge.

The programme of the workshop includes sessions devoted to present and discuss the results of Work Package 1 "Understanding the societal value of culture" and sessions about case studies carried out in Work Package 2 "Identifying the emergence of the values of culture", under the co-ordination of the Faculdade de Letras da Universidade do Porto (University of Porto).
